

GOV. JAMES TO NAME STATE DRAFT HEAD TO SUPERVISE WORK

State Draft Headquarters To Be Established
Soon

CALLS COMMISSIONERS

Commissioners of 67 Counties
To Meet in Harrisburg
Next Monday

By Raymond Wilcox
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Sept. 19.—(INS)—Gov. Arthur H. James conferred with his advisers today on the appointment of a State Draft director, following issuance of a formal proclamation by him calling upon an estimated 1,500,000 men in Pennsylvania to register October 16 for possible military training.

The high-salaried official, only one of hundreds of draft personnel whose appointment does not require the President's approval, is expected to be named soon after the selection of a national draft director by President Roosevelt. Such an announcement was expected momentarily.

The Governor will also name an assistant director, following which a state draft headquarters will be established. Approximately 10 officers of the Adjutant General's staff will join the State board of military aides. They will be temporarily excused from their National Guard service while performing these administrative duties.

The Governor's formal call, in line with that issued by President Roosevelt, called on all men between the ages of 21 and 35, inclusive, to present themselves at their regular polling booths for registration on Wednesday, October 16. Election officials were asked to volunteer their services in registering the men.

Simultaneously, the Governor confirmed published reports (carried exclusively by International News Service on September 9) that the Federal Government would take over the Pennsylvania National Guard military reservation at Indiantown Gap, near Harrisburg, presumably for the training of Guardsmen and draftees from this and other states. The place, when fully equipped, will be able to accommodate as many as 40,000 men.

The Governor disclosed that he has sent invitations to all county commissioners in the state to meet with him at the capitol next Monday at 3 p. m. to discuss "ways and means of promoting registration of those to be called into service by the draft." The county commissioners have more direct contacts with election officers and polling places and would know all the problems.

Governor James said he would select the hundreds of volunteer personnel who will direct the 420 draft boards from a list of 2500 persons, many of whom have written in recently offering their services. Leo Moersbach, Pennsylvania commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, wrote the Governor suggesting that war veterans be included in the membership of every board.

The Governor called upon all employers to give their employees sufficient time to register.

"I especially call upon all election

STUNTS, DEMONSTRATIONS PLANNED FOR CO. CUBS

Finals of Events at Spring
Picnic Also Planned
For Saturday

TRAINING COURSE, TOO

On the afternoon of Saturday the Cub Wigwag of the Bucks County Council, Boy Scouts of America, will get under way at Camp Ockanickon. Lasting from two to seven p. m., Cub Scouts will take part in various stunts and demonstrations. In addition to the events, as described below, finals of stunts, which were held at Spring Picnic, will be judged. The winner in this event will receive a cup, it remaining in his possession for one year.

Immediately following the Wigwag, an overnight training course will be held for Scout leaders. Known as Elements III, this course is to be given in the council for the first time since it has been made one of the requirements for the five-year training award. The prime objective of the course is to teach the use of troop and patrol methods of over-night camping. The leaders taking this course will camp out under canvas, prepare their own meals, and carry on a program which in general should parallel a troop over-night hike. Members of the course will be divided into patrols and as such will function as a unit within an organized troop. Particular emphasis will be placed on preparing meals and new and novel ideas will be tried. The course, which begins at seven p. m., Saturday, and runs until Sunday, is open to all Scouters in the council.

Cub Wigwag program—Each event—100 pts. Maximum (6)—600 points. Standard—450 points or more. The Director in charge will register your Den and will give each of them a den card. There will be six (6) judging stations. After the Den has been scored at each of the six judging stations, they are to take the den card to the director who gave it to them. He will total it, and if there is a score of 450 or more points, the den will be rated standard.

New York Times

Supports Willkie

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The New York Times last night announced its support of Wendell L. Willkie for the presidency, the first time it has backed a Republican presidential candidate since 1908.

In a three-column editorial, the Times, which describes itself as Independent Democratic, said:

"We give our own support to Mr. Willkie primarily for these reasons: Because we believe that he is better equipped than Mr. Roosevelt to provide this country with an adequate defense; because we believe that he is a practical liberal who understands the need of increased production; because we believe that the fiscal policies of Mr. Roosevelt have failed disastrously; because we believe that at a time when the traditional safeguards of democracy are falling everywhere it is particularly important to honor and preserve the American tradition against vesting the enormous powers of the presidency in the hands of any man for three consecutive terms of office."

The newspaper supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936.

London Dangerously Angry

By H. R. Knickerbocker

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

London, Sept. 19.—London is dangerously angry. The danger is for Nazi Germany.

This most sentimental and most human people of Europe are getting mightily fed up with the German "Schrecklichkeit" and as I walked among them today through fresh ruins wrought by the Luftwaffe time and again I could hear exclamations demanding reprisals in kind.

Hitler has only got a few more days of comparative safety before the equalizing storms will release the Royal Air Force from the duty of concentrating its chief attention upon invasion ports.

Once Britain's now enormous bomber force is freed for slugging Berlin, it is the prediction of most observers here that the German capital is going to get a bruising such as it has never had in its whole comparatively short and peaceful life.

Then is coming the test of nerves to see who breaks first—British or German.

My observation of Londoners today as they came to their places of business to see for the first time their own property smashed was that they are losing some of that remarkable gaiety which was so surprising in the first raids and are now becoming graver and grimmer.

Again today there was astonishing testimony to the speed with which two great department stores in Oxford street—Peter Robinson and Bourne and Hollingsworth—were relatively tidied up after bombs tore off their block-long fronts. Hundreds of tons of glass are swept up from London's streets even before early risers appear.

To Draft Plan for Dismembering British Empire

Rome, Sept. 19.—A program for dismemberment of the British Empire will be drafted in meticulous detail during the visit to Rome of German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop, which began today, this correspondent was informed by a reliable authority.

Great stress was laid upon the fact that while Von Ribbentrop is in Rome, Attilio Terruzzi, Italian Colonial Minister, is engaged in similar conversations in Berlin. The present Italian-German plan, it was said, embraces not only a "new Europe" but a world-wide redistribution of the British Empire when and if England is defeated.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

The regent of Bucks County Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. J. Herman Barnsley, Newtown, presented a silk chapter flag to the group at a meeting this week.

At the session, which took place at the home of Mrs. Edwin Taylor, Chalfont, one new member was accepted. Mrs. Isaac J. Vanartsdalen, Doylestown, was in charge of the program, which dealt with the Constitution.

The Loyal Republican Club Auxiliary, in meeting at Buckingham on Monday evening, had 100 in attendance, with Mrs. Ralph R. Dunn presiding.

A joint meeting with the men's group is arranged for October 14th.

Edward B. Watson addressed the group, explaining about registration. Miss Laura Nonemaker, of Lehigh County, was another speaker, she telling of the need for women voters in this election.

The vocalist of the evening was Mrs. Roy Johnson, she being accompanied by Mrs. Palge Crawford. Recitation was presented by Mrs. Susan Butler.

Another speaker of the evening was Eugene Gorman, of Allentown, an ex-member of the legislature. Mr. Gorman dwelt on the character of Wendell L. Willkie, whom he described as a "real fighter, a real organizer, and a real man." He predicted that Willkie will sweep the country from Maine to California.

Although attendance at the meeting of the Pineville Grange at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scarborough, Wycombe, on Monday, was only fair, a program of interest was presented under the direction of the lecturer, B. Palmer Tomlinson. The program included a talk on birds, the description of a tour of New England and a discussion relating to the proposed construction of a pavilion in Washington Crossing State Park.

Another feature of the meeting was a report of the Fall meeting of Lower Bucks and Philadelphia Pomona Grange, No. 22, in session in the Carversville Christian Church, September 4. Reports of that meeting were presented by B. Palmer Tomlinson, Horace P. Smith and Mrs. Edward Scarborough.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

Action Blocked!

Washington, Sept. 18.

EVERY now and then some of the enthusiastic friends of Mr. Roosevelt inadvertently make a more devastating criticism of him than any presented by those who, frankly, are in the opposition camp. The most recent example of this has been caused by the President's failure to name a chairman for his National Defense Commission.

EVER since the commission was created its weakness has been that it has had no head with power to co-ordinate, such as Woodrow Wilson gave Mr. B. M. Baruch in the old War Industries Board. Practically every thoughtful person, whether for Mr. Roosevelt or against him, is in accord about that Mr. Roosevelt started out with the idea that no head was needed and that he himself could do all the co-ordinating necessary without delegating power to anyone else. Recently it has been borne in upon him that the co-ordinating job required vastly more time than he possibly could give to it; that the defense program was bogging because of the lack of a chairman.

SOME weeks ago members of the commission talked the situation over among themselves and agreed that, if their efforts were not to be minimized, the time had come when authority had to be lodged in a chairman. Various friends of the President had pressed this view on him and—so it was reported—he was just about to act when Mr. Willkie, his Republican opponent, made a statement urging that without a chairman with real power the business of preparing this country to defend itself could not be effectively done.

THAT upset the applecart, Mr.

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF LEAVING CRASH SCENE

Walter Adamski, Phila., Tells Jury Car Made So Much
Noise He Didn't Hear It

COUNTY PAYS COSTS

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 19.—Walter Adamski, 23, 4760 Richmond street, Philadelphia, was acquitted by a jury on Tuesday afternoon of a charge of failure to stop a motor vehicle at the scene of the accident in a session of criminal court here. The costs of prosecution were directed by the jury to be placed on the county.

Adamski, a bridegroom of less than three months, testified that his car, which was filled with his parents, a friend and relatives, made so much noise that if he did brush the fender of a car owned by William Shadle, 4732 Knorr street, Philadelphia, he never heard the noise or felt the slightest impact.

Mrs. Emily Adamski, who caused the jury and Judge Calvin S. Boyer to smile when she admitted they were still on their honeymoon, after being a bride of two and one-half months, said she sat in the center in the front seat in her husband's car, returning from a picnic at Hulmeville.

Edward Skronski, a friend, who was the third party sitting in the front seat of the car, testified the defendant didn't swerve off the highway and that there was no crash.

Edward Schlitzel, who is the defendant's Pennsylvania Railroad "boss," testified the young man has been employed by him for nearly five

Detain Langhorne Youth For His Alleged Threats

LANGHORNE, Sept. 19.—Lincoln De Cleyre, 22-year-old operator of a gasoline service station at Maple and Bellevue avenues, here, for the past six years, is being held in $25,000 bail in Philadelphia on a charge of openly threatening the life of President Roosevelt.

Arrested by Secret Service agents, De Cleyre readily admitted the charge. According to one agent, the youth said: "I would like to have the President on the other end of a gun. . . . If I'm drafted, I would use my Army gun to end his life."

U. S. Commissioner Norman J. Griffin held him in $25,000 bail, to keep him out of circulation during President Roosevelt's visit to Philadelphia on Friday and also to enable mental experts to examine him. An investigation also will be made to determine if De Cleyre is a member of any subversive group.

Two Secret Service agents found Socialist literature in the home of a farmer near here, where De Cleyre boarded.

ENGLAND WAITING FOR GERMANS WITH A WARM WELCOME

Kenneth B. White, Morrisville, Tells Fathers Ass'n of Conditions Abroad

BRITISH UNWORRIED

Business Continues As Usual;
Well Organized Against Invasion

"England is waiting for the Germans, and will give the Germans a warm welcome."

This is a bit of first-hand information presented before the Fathers' Association at a meeting in Bristol high school, last evening, by Kenneth B. White, Morrisville, who has spent most of the past nine years in Europe, mainly in England.

Mr. White, who ably held the rapt interest of the men, told of how England has prepared for the threatened invasion on the part of the Nazis, and how the English people are meeting the situation with a fearless attitude.

"Conditions caused by the assaults against the country, and the bombing of England are not hardships, just inconveniences," was the way he explained it. Mr. White, who returned to the United States several weeks ago, informed his listeners that those coming over from England on the same boat were more worried about what they would find in America, than they were about their own country, so confident are they that all will be well with the British.

"Business continues in England as usual. The people do not worry about what is going on about them. They take the attitude of a current joke, that there is as much chance of being struck by a bomb as of winning the Irish Sweepstakes. If a bomb strikes a street, it does mean inconvenience, but it is soon made passable again. An entire street is not destroyed, inasmuch as one bomb dropped makes a hole only about 100 feet across, and these cannot be dropped in continuous rows by a plane."

In reference to food, Mr. White informed that vegetables are plentiful, and one can have all the milk he can drink. Forty cents worth of meat per person per week is allowed. Gas is lacking, with the allowance to a car owner being six gallons a month, "but

NEW CARS, BETTER ROADS

With higher speeds and more severe braking tests, the problem of building suitable roads grows acute. Materials that were considered good enough for hard-surfacing ten years ago cannot stand the strain of today's travel, and many of the roads on which they were used are being rebuilt. They crumble under the strain and patching will not hold because the original material is unsuited to the weight and the tension.

Chemists for the petroleum industry are doing their best to make a substitute for some of the compositions formerly considered good, and study is also being given to the "supporting bed" on which the hard surface is laid. If the foundation is inadequate, no material can make an enduring surface.

Lessons learned in recent years are causing road builders to think more about quality and less about quantity, though quantity is still clamored for by those who have not been furnished with hard surfaced roads of any kind. The farmer off the highways is still unable to go and come in all kinds of weather.

But he can take comfort, for when new roads are built in the future they will be better roads, unless the builders deliberately refuse to take advantage of what science is teaching about materials. No longer is it necessary to buy material that water will strip to pieces, nor need roadbeds be tolerated that yield to traffic weight.

OYSTERS ARE IN

In spite of the mud washed down from the cleared lands, the oyster supply in North American coastal waters has been continuous through the centuries, but "overfishing" the beds has become a common expression in recent years, and now more oysters are shipped to the trade in cans than in the raw state. This is regarded as an indication that the supply is diminishing and the oysters are failing to develop properly in some of the beds. South Carolina interests began in 1939 to experiment in cultivating. Several oyster farms were started, to enable man to learn how to aid nature in producing more.

Probably no sea food is more favored by man, for nearly everyone likes his oysters stewed, fried, baked or raw; and the months with an "o" in them always draw attention to the season when oysters are obtainable.

Many believe that if a way were found to stop the washing of the soils into the ocean, nature would see to a continuous and plentiful supply of oysters for all needs. But waters still run red to the sea, and this does not increase the chance for oyster growth. Artificial cultivation will doubtless become more and more necessary, and the experiment in South Carolina will be watched with interest.

The Senate must begin to feel that its "advice" and "consent" aren't what they used to be.

RESOLUTION

At the Annual Convention of the Bucks County Sabbath School Association which met in Morrisville on September 6-7, the following resolutions of wide significance were unanimously adopted:

"Resolved that we express to God our thanks for His help during the past year in local Sunday schools, in district conventions and in this annual convention, and pray for guidance and strength to faithfully serve Him during the coming year."

"Resolved that we urge every Christian to pray, give and work to relieve the distress of those who are suffering wrongs from aggressor nations."

"Resolved that we urge all Christians as far as possible not to patronize those who foster the sale and use of intoxicants."

under his seat, and carefully wiped his lips.

"Your yacht?" exclaimed Ginger, amazed.

"I'm Stanley Briggs, of New York," said yachtsman Briggs, held out his hand, and as no one took it, shook hands with himself. "My boat's the Little Casino. I was going down to Miami in it, and ordered my captain to get up steam and sail at dawn, this morning. I overslept, and they sailed without me." He grinned, owlishly. "Stanley Briggs' word is law aboard the Little Casino." He gulped, smiled apologetically. "Now I've got to catch up with it before it reaches Biscayne Bay."

"And you're hitchhiking all the way down to Florida?" Ginger was incredulous.

"Sure. Can't tell when the crew will run out of liquor and put into port for supplies," said Mr. Briggs. "I lost all my money in a poker game last night—so I'm hitchhiking. It's a nice way to see the country, anyway."

"A likely story, sniffed Miss Love, who had been listening. "The man's plainly a—"

"Ah, pardon me, Madame," said Mr. Briggs, and rose unsteadily, as he sought his jug. "May I offer you a libation?"

"Certainly not," said Desdemona, icily.

Mr. Smock, who had brightened, sighed.

The bus lurched then, and Mr. Briggs fell back into his seat.

"Looks like a stormy crossing, doesn't it?" he murmured, and shortly fell asleep.

Ginger and Tony looked at each other and laughed. Then he beckoned to her.

"Come on and sit up here with me—it's lonesome."

She hesitated, then joined him again.

"Here I am then, but I refuse to fight with you any more."

"Flag of truce," He grinned and jerked his head toward the nautical drunk. "If that chap's really going as far as Florida, maybe he'll join us, and cut down all our expenses."

"You're always wanting to share something, aren't you?" she murmured.

"Why not?" he wanted to know. "What's the fun of anything—a drink—a dollar—a sunset—unless you can share it with someone?"

She made no answer to that, digesting it, and thought that his smile, like his ears, weren't half bad.

Behind them, Desdemona Love began again.

"I shall never forget my season with Maude Adams. Ah, Mr. Smock—there was an elfish, diaphanous, elusive creature! There was a true Thespian genius!"

"That reminds me," put in the lion-tamer, "I had a cub liness once when I was with Barnum and Bailey—a chocolate-colored yearling with yellow eyes and whiskers—"

The two were off.

Casanova, the cat, sat on his master's lap and gazed unblinkingly across the aisle at Gertrude, still circling the strange foreign object in her bowl with puzzled, suspicious eyes and indignantly vibrating gill-plates.

BUCKS COUNTY SABBATH SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

COMMUNICATION

Langhorne, Pa.,
September 17, 1940.

Editor Courier:

I am enclosing a story of what the Quakers are doing in Bucks County to meet the problems which conscription has raised for them and other conscientious objectors, because I think it has definite news value. If you feel the same you are very welcome to use it as you wish.

Very truly yours,
T. S. CADWALLADER.

[Enclosure]

Since the Burke-Wadsworth Military Conscription Bill expressly provides for the exemption of those "who by reason of religious training and belief are conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form," The Society of Friends has undertaken to advise its members of their rights and duties under the law. To this end, the Bucks Quarterly Meeting of Friends, held at Fallsington on August 29th appointed a committee composed of George Walton and William Eves of Newtown and Mabel Briggs and Augustus Cadwallader of Yardley, charged with the responsibility of looking out for the interests of conscientious objectors throughout the meetings of the county.

It is not the purpose of the committee to persuade anyone to become a conscientious objector, but rather to advise those who cannot now conscientiously take part in any war because they believe that such conduct is opposed to the life and teachings of Christ and consequently are willing to take the risks of this position.

To this end the various local meetings have appointed local committees and have planned meetings where conscientious objectors can come and be advised of the law, ask questions, and prepare themselves to answer questions which may be asked by a draft board.

Such a meeting has already been held by the Mafeld Monthly Meeting in the Yardley Friends Meeting House, Sunday evening, September 8th, at which Augustus Cadwallader and Mabel Briggs were present to counsel. Another meeting will be held in Newtown in the near future and still others at later dates at the various Friends Meeting Houses throughout the county.

LOOKING FORWARD

By Franklyn Waltman

Publicity Director, Republican National Committee

There was one question raised by Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes in his radio tirade replying to the Wendell Willkie Acceptance Speech which merits an answer.

"By what warrant," asked the New Deal's Donald Duck, "does Mr. Willkie presume to accuse the President of the United States of issuing inflammatory statements and indulging in manufactured panics?"

Donald Duck Ickes undoubtedly was not seeking knowledge. He must have been asking a rhetorical question for he surely must know the answers. For one of Mr. Roosevelt's "inflammatory" statements was uttered in Donald Duck's home town of Chicago and if we are not greatly mistaken Harold Ickes was not five feet away from Mr. Roosevelt at the time.

The time was October 5, 1937, when Mr. Roosevelt shocked the country with his "quarantine speech." In essence Mr. Roosevelt on that occasion proposed that aggressor nations throughout the world be quarantined just as local health officers quarantine patients when an epidemic of physical disease breaks out. In other words, Mr. Roosevelt proposed that the United States take the lead in policing the world.

It was this speech which marked Mr. Roosevelt's sharp reversal from an attitude of peace and neutrality which he manifested during the 1936 campaign toward a course which ever since has made many, many Americans concerned lest he was leading the country into war.

There is no intention here to defend or excuse any aggressor nation. But it is not always so clear just who the aggressor is in many conflicts and, anyway, why should the United States assume the role of branding of nations as "aggressors" when their aggression is not aimed directly against us? And why should the United States assume the role of putting down aggressors wherever they may appear by undertaking to be the moral policeman of all the world?

Mr. Roosevelt's speech at Chicago three years ago raised these questions and visibly disturbed many Americans. Was it not therefore an "inflammatory" statement? And how about the President's other frequent speeches in which he assailed and belabored other governments? Were these not inflammatory?

Of course, the most flagrant example of an "inflammatory" statement, however, was contained in the President's speech last June at the University of Virginia. In that speech Mr. Roosevelt delivered a slashing attack on the Italian Government, actually naming it, and attributing to it an evil and shameful course.

What is worse, Mr. Roosevelt interpolated into that speech an intemperate statement unworthy of anyone who merits the description of statesman when he asserted that "on this tenth day of June the hand that held the dagger struck it into the back of its neighbor."

Seldom in modern history has the ruler of one nation uttered such "inflammatory" and provocative words regarding a friendly government as President Roosevelt did in this speech. In effect, he accused the Italian Government of stealthily stabbing a neighbor in the back. Does anyone suppose the Italian people soon will forget that insult?

Now as for "manufactured panics," surely Mr. Ickes must remember all the submarine scares which President Roosevelt undertook to conjure up last September. It will be recalled that for a period of several weeks the White House every other day or so solemnly announced submarines off our coasts—mythical submarines that were not ever reported by any other quarter.

Likewise Mr. Ickes must remember the state of panic into which Mr. Roosevelt threw the country last fall when he summarily proclaimed a national emergency. For days none knew exactly what authority Mr. Roosevelt had appropriated to himself. Indeed, none knows with certainty even now. Yet we are at peace. But Mr. Roosevelt has acted as though the country were engaged in a war.

No, Donald Duck's quacking as usual was without foundation and Wendell Willkie stood on firm, very firm ground when he asserted that "there have been occasions when many of us have wondered if he (the President) is deliberately inciting us to war."

County, happened in rural areas, while four happened in built-up districts. Summary: Pedestrian accidents, 5; speeding, 2; inattentive operator, 2; reckless driving, 1; skidding, 1; defective equipment, 1; too fast for conditions, 1; failure to yield right of way, 1; operator stricken with heart attack, 1; total, 15.

The number of accident fatalities reported during this period is a decrease over the average number of fatalities experienced in this county during the first six months of 1939. Fatal accidents by highways: City streets, 4; U. S. Route No. 13, 4; U. S. Route No. 1, 3; U. S. Route No. 309, 1; Pennsylvania Route No. 101, 1; Pennsylvania Route No. 132, 1; Township roads, 1; total, 15.

During 1939, Bucks County had 36 fatal motor vehicle accidents according to records of the Department of Revenue. Twenty-nine of these deaths occurred in the rural areas and seven in the city-borough districts. So far for the first six months of 1940 there has been a slight decrease in the number of fatal motor vehicle accidents, and it is still possible to have a greater decrease for the year 1940 as compared with records for 1939.

Fatal accidents by weather conditions: Clear, 10; raining, 4; foggy, 1; total, 15.

Fatal accidents by highway locations: Straight and level stretch, 10; curve and level stretch, 3; intersection, 1; curve and at intersection, 1; total, 15.

The Pennsylvania Motor Police Force solicits the co-operation of all police and other agencies interested in the promotion of highway safety in an effort to bring about a reduction in the motor vehicle accident fatality experience. In this connection it is pointed out that practically all motor vehicle accidents are the result of human error and are, therefore, correctable. If motor vehicle operators will give more attention to only the fundamental rules of safe driving, such as, driving to the right of the highway, turning at intersections, limitations on speed and passing only under conditions where there is available adequate sight distance of the highway ahead, improvement in highway safety would be assured.

Pedestrian involvement in motor vehicle accident fatalities continues to remain approximately 50 per cent of the total experience. This indicates a need for more stringent regulations of pedestrians in cities and boroughs together with extreme caution in walking on or along the public highway in the rural areas. Pedestrians on highways at night should remember that while they can always see an approaching motor vehicle the operator of such vehicle may not be aware of their presence. This is usually brought about because the pedestrian does not carry a light and is wearing dark clothing. To carry a light, or wear light clothing and walk facing traffic may be the means of saving life.

Fatal accidents by type: One-car accident (collision with fixed object), 6; car and pedestrian, 4; unknown and pedestrian, 1; two-car accident (head-on collision), 1; car and motorcycle (rear end collision), 1; truck and passenger car (collided into rear of parked truck), 1; total, 15.

Fatal accidents by type of vehicle: Passenger car, 10; commercial vehicle, 1; passenger and motorcycle, 1; unknown, 1; commercial and motorcycle, 1; passenger and commercial, 1; total, 15.

Fatal accidents by light conditions: Darkness, 8; daylight, 7; total, 15.

Analyze The Causes Of Highway Accidents

The next greatest cause was "speeding" and failure on the part of the operator to give proper attention to driving, there being two fatal accidents for each of these causes. There was one fatal accident which was caused by reckless driving and resulted in the death of two persons and the vehicle involved was a stolen motor vehicle. Spot Reducing by Stimulation accomplished with New Scientific REDUCEVAC

At the Bristol establishment of Ida's Beauty Salon patrons daily are giving evidence that former reducing punishments are changed to pleasures. From one unit, the Royal Reducevac, in which patron reclines in privacy and comfort, comes the genial heat to increase surface stimulation. Cupping and Rollaway applications break up fatty tissue so these are absorbed by Nature's own process.

And the other natural result is that the patron not only looks better but announces she feels immensely better. Undoubtedly it was a relief for her to get away from dieting, drugs and exercises . . . but the Royal Reducevac turns out to be a surprise in the absolute luxury of the spot-reducing, or streamlining it gives. By spot-reducing, over-large portions of the figure, ankles to back, are given a moderated contour.

Roosevelt at once brushed aside the Willkie recommendation with the remark that his Republican opponent knew nothing about politics. Nothing more has been heard of it except that two friendly and well-informed Administration columnists a few days ago quoted "a competent spokesman" of the commission as saying: "It's too bad Willkie popped the idea. We've been discussing a reorganization for some time and everything appeared set. Now probably nothing will be done until after the election."

NO more severe indictment of Mr. Roosevelt has been made than is contained in that quotation. It comes from one of his own appointees and friends and it is printed by New Dealish correspondents who certainly are without third-tier hostility and apparently did not realize the implications of their article. What, in effect, it says is that the President of the United States is so petty an individual that he can be diverted from an act concededly in the national interests for no other reason than that it has been publicly suggested by his opponent.

THE facts speak for themselves. Here they are: First, the President refuses to name a chairman for the commission; second, he is urged to do so by many detached and friendly persons; third, he becomes convinced that a chairman should be named; fourth, his commission informally agrees that without a chairman the best results cannot be obtained; fifth, everything is set to name a chairman. Then Mr. Willkie urges it and "nothing will now be done until after election." If that was true, as asserted by his friends last week, it is doubly true today because Mr. Willkie in his Coffeyville speech on Monday reiterated his statement that the defense program is being bungled because the President will not appoint a chairman and delegate to him the necessary authority to do the job. "Nothing will be done until after election."

THAT is the story as it is presented by the most friendly sources. If any opponent of the President has pictured him in a more unfavorable light, it cannot now be recalled. If the President refrained from action in some ordinary matter at some normal time, for such a cause as is here attributed to him, it would seem a very small thing to do. But, under existing circumstances, to be thus diverted from a course which would promote speed and efficiency in the vital job of national defense appears worse than small—not for from ignoble. It seems not to be in Mr. Roosevelt to admit a mistake—or correct one. Particularly is this true if the mistake is pointed out by a political opponent. Under those circumstances, it seems the national interests are subordinated to personal vanity. Apparently, the way to induce Mr. Roosevelt to give the commission a head is to have Mr. Willkie declare it should not have one.

NEW GLORY FOR CHICKEN AND MUSHROOMS

Chicken and mushrooms, always a favorite combination, take upon themselves new honors in this marvel of light texture and delectable flavor which is mushroom and chicken fondue. You'll find this dish a delight to make, for it keeps its shape beautifully even when it must stand a few minutes before serving. Also, since the chicken and seasonings are really from canned country-style chicken soup, you obtain this elegance without a strain on your pocketbook and with little work at all.

Mushroom and Chicken Fondue

Sauté—

2 cups chopped or sliced canned or fresh mushrooms

in—

2 tablespoons butter.

Sprinkle with—

2 tablespoons flour.

Blend well, then add—

1 medium (15 fluid oz.) can country-style chicken soup

1/2 teaspoon salt.

Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Pour this over—

1 cup soft bread crumbs.

Cool slightly.

Beat until thick and lemon colored—

3 egg yolks.

Beat until stiff but not dry—

3 egg whites.

Fold yolks, then whites, into mushroom mixture. Pour into buttered baking dish and set in a pan containing a small amount of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 55 minutes or until firm.

EVERYBODY'S TREAT

Everybody gets enthused about eating when crab meat salad is set before them. The clever touches added to the following recipe makes it a particular treat. Ripe mission olives and blanched almonds enrich its flavor while pure cider vinegar fused with the mayonnaise cunningly balances their blandness.

Crab Meat Salad

Combine—

1 cup flaked crab meat

4 hard cooked eggs, sliced

1/2 cup blanched almonds, quartered

1 cup chopped celery

8 ripe mission olives, sliced from stone.

Blend together—

1/2 cup mayonnaise

1/4 cup pure cider vinegar

1 teaspoon salt.

Add dressing to crab meat mixture and mix thoroughly. Chill. Serve in cups of lettuce and garnish with tomato wedges. Or serve salad on tomato slices arranged in bed of lettuce.

SATURDAY SUPPER

Bean suppers for Saturday nights are smart in summer, particularly if you suit the beans to the season by making a zesty salad of them. The following recipe is a quick one that brings delectable results, with canned oven-baked beans as the basis, while crispness and piquancy are furnished by preserved sweet pickles and celery.

Kidney Bean Salad

Place in wire sieve—

1 medium (17 1/2-oz.) can oven-baked red kidney beans.

Pour hot water over beans to remove sauce, drain well, then chill.

Add, mixing carefully—

4 preserved sweet pickles, sliced

4 hard cooked eggs, sliced (save 6 slices for garnishing)

1/2 cup chopped celery

2 tablespoons finely chopped onion

1 teaspoon salt

3 to 4 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Serve in nests of crisp lettuce or green pepper cups, garnishing with hard cooked eggs and parsley. (Serves 6.)

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

When privilege, opportunity and duty is neglected, when the voice of truth is drowned by the demands of passion, when desire and ease is our choice instead of duty and service, when jealousy and anger displace love and faith, may we be honest enough to confess, "I have played the fool." In honest confession may we obtain Thy forgiveness. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

A running chain of comedy situations make up the fast-paced Warner musical, "My Love Came Back," starring Olivia de Havilland and Jeffrey Lynn, which opens at the Grand Theatre today.

As snappy as a next season's Hattie Carnegie number, "My Love Came Back" is cast with a list of dependable laugh-jerkers including Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman, Charles Winninger and Spring Byington. Continental flavor is added by the touch of Kurt Bernhardt, a recent import, and the Walter Reisch story was adapted for the screen by Ivan Goff, Robert Buckner and Earl Baldwin.

BRISTOL THEATRE

For an hour or so of exciting fun, you'd better not miss "Just Like a Woman," the new melodramatic comedy which was shown for the first time locally at the Bristol Theatre yesterday. Here is fast-paced gaiety, a happy mixture of sophisticated comedy, frothy romance, and melodramatic action.

Gene Autry made his film starring debut in "Tumbling Tumbleweeds" with George "Gabby" Hayes playing an arch-villain who plotted Gene's life. Now, however, they appear together as friends in Republic's big musical western, "In Old Monterey," showing at the Bristol Theatre.

RITZ THEATRE

Director Sam Wood wears a hat and work but he doesn't pull it down over his ears when things go wrong on a picture. He doesn't yell at extras. He seldom takes a scene more than four times. If someone offers advice, he doesn't fly into a rage.

Wood is a quiet, good-natured fellow with none of the usual directorial whimsies. He directed "Good-bye Mr. Chips" and more recently he staged Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" for Sol Lesser, which is now on view at the Ritz Theatre.

GOOD SELECTION MAY BE HAD AT SUMMER SALE OF FURNITURE

By Miss Edna Stephany

(Home Economics Representative) Late summer furniture sales attract our attention and we scan the announcements to see where we might find good buys.

The wary purchaser knows that a price reduction does not always mean a real value. We must not only consider price, style and upholstery of chairs and davenport, but we must look beneath the surface at the inner construction.

Since we cannot tear furniture apart to investigate, we must depend on the salesman's statements or on informative labels that some manufacturers are attaching to upholstered furniture. These labels usually tell something about the inner construction of the piece.

A well-built upholstered piece of furniture will have a hardwood frame with parts dovetailed together. Soft woods do not hold tacks well. Pieces only glued together have a habit of loosening and falling apart.

Springs of tempered steel will be well-sewed into strong webbing. The springs used in the seat will be tied diagonally as well as cross-wise.

Padding may be down, feathers, hair, cotton, moss, sisal, tow, and excelsior, listed in order of their quality. There are varying grades of each of these materials. A new padding, sometimes called rubber foam, seemingly quite satisfactory but probably too new for us to judge its real durability, is also being used.

The wise homemaker will take advantage of these late summer furniture sales, but if she expects to get a real bargain she must buy intelligently.

JENKINTOWN HIGH TO START OFF UNDER LIGHTS ON SEPT. 20

A Varied Program is To Be Presented On Opening Night

TO STAGE A DRILL

Full Explanation of All Signs and Signals Used by Referees To Be Given

Tomorrow evening, Jenkintown high school will present a varied and entertaining program under the new lights erected during the past summer in the high school stadium. In addition to the football jamboree and drills in which practically every student in the entire school will take part, a representative from the Philadelphia Football Association will give a full explanation of all the signs and signals to be used by football referees and umpires this fall.

The red and blue clad squad, after having two practice sessions with Cheltenham and Newtown, respectively seem to be in tip-top shape for the jamboree. The 85-pounders, the 110-pounders, and the 130-pounders of the bucket weight divisions have been working out daily as every man on each team wishes to do his part for his color on the night of September 20th. The reds will fight the blues every inch of the way and it should be a spectacle worth seeing with the little fellows from the grade school taking as much part in the football jamboree as the big men on the varsity. Doubtless, on looking over the first squad, could not decide which side would be victorious in this colorful football game. He believes that both squads have an even chance and feels that neither variety squad will be able to tally and thus the issue will depend upon any break which the weight teams might register. Jack Hedler, tackle on the Red club, and brother of big Bob Hedler of the North Carolina Tar Heels, snared the opposition left and right in the practice sessions and should be the outstanding defensive player. The threat of the Blue club will be chiefly in the passing arm of Bob Murphy, backfield ace.

In addition, the mass drills, the performance of the band and its outstanding twirling corps, and the three-man red club passing team, and the three-man blue passing team will furnish entertainment of a high order.

MIDGET AUTOS TO RACE AT LANGHORNE, OCT. 6

LANGHORNE, Sept. 19.—The National 100 Mile Midget Auto Racing Championship under Three A sanction will be staged at Langhorne Speedway, Sunday afternoon, October 6th. It was officially announced by Jack Kochman and Sherman (Red) Crise, co-promoters of the "Little Indianapolis" classic.

Fifty small auto pilots will qualify for the century grind from a record-breaking field of approximately 150 drivers, representing virtually every section of the Nation. The leading stars in both big and small car ranks will converge on the one-mile Bucks County oval.

Promoters Kochman and Crise have posted a $5000 purse, largest in the history of the midget racing sport, as a magnet to attract America's outstanding drivers. In addition to the prize money, leading automotive and tire concerns will make awards to the winners of the championship grind.

Erroneous Los Angeles, Sept. 19.—California, Democratic in 1932 and 1936, was urged today by Wendell Willkie to reject the New Deal and President Roosevelt in 1940 and elect an administration which has faith in the people, faith in industry and faith in its ability to build up an adequate national defense.

Entering California by the South, the Republican Presidential candidate drew large audience at his train stops and at San Diego where he delivered his longest speech of the day.

FIRST YEAR STAR - By Jack Sords

It was at San Diego that he charged: "In the seven and a half years that the New Deal has been in power, it has attempted to solve many problems. The standard formula has been the appropriations of more money, or the concentration of more power in the hands of the President, or both."

"Consequently we now have a public debt approaching fifty billion dollars, and Mr. Roosevelt has the power to change at will the value of money, to raise and lower our tariffs, to close our banks and stock exchanges and to appoint and virtually control commissions that regulate from Washington almost all our business."

Probe Finding of Child

Scotdale, Sept. 19.—Authorities today continued to check the possibility that two-year-old Ronald Rumbaugh, found late yesterday after a three-day search by police and volunteers, might have been abandoned by a would-be kidnapper who failed to carry out an abduction scheme.

Ronny, who vanished Sunday afternoon after his father had admonished him against following him away from their home, was sighted in a field from one of three airplanes utilized in the hunt.

Found Bound in Auto

Philadelphia, Sept. 11.—Martin Turke, 43-year-old paperhanger found bound and gagged in his automobile, was recovering in Woman's Medical Hospital today from a severe beating which caused him to lose his voice. Two policemen found Turke trussed up in his car parked on a highway. A stone had been placed in his mouth by the assailants before the gag was applied.

Robbers Get $50

Delair, N. J., Sept. 18.—Forcing the bartender and the owner's brother to face the wall, two robbers today stole $50 from the taproom of Nicholas Pettite, in Delair. The bartender, Joseph Mozzo, and Philip Pettite were the only ones in the establishment at the time of the holdup.

U. S. To Take Over Indiantown Gap

England Waiting for Germans With Very Warm Welcome

this will give 250 miles in an English machine.

Black-outs, the speaker informed, are indescribable. Automobile headlights are equipped with metal shields, in each of which are three small holes. The stores which are open in the evening have shades drawn, and in the corner of the shade is a hole, four inches square. People are discouraged from going out at night, with movies being open only certain evenings to keep the residents home.

Those living in safety areas are expected to have refugees in their homes. The reason so many were in London when the heavy bombing first started was due to the fact that many who had gone to the country areas for safety's sake had become home-sick, and "sneaked" back.

That the Clyde area was prosperous just now was another fact pointed out. This manufacturing district is busy since the start of the war. "A man is considered well off in that area if he earns $20 per week. These are boom times on the Clyde."

Conditions in England have made the people more neighborly, added Mr. White. "They have more in common." The French and English planes are readily discerned from the German craft by the sound of the motor, the speaker told. Practically every adult resident of the islands is engaged in one of the numerous units organized. Some are participating in classes where first-aid is taught, air-raid work, or are organized into fire brigades. The women workers are uniformed, and society girls are driving ambulances at night in London.

The air-raid shelters, which are to be found in the lawn of every home, are comfortably furnished, the speaker told. In each there are placed beds or cots, a radio for the family to enjoy, and toys for the children. "The family off-times leaves home for the shelter, just as you and I would go to our cabin in the country during spare time; and of course all repair there when raid warnings are sounded."

The placing of anti-aircraft guns at all "roundabouts" (traffic circles) was spoken of. Also at these points are placed in readiness, six to 10 antique automobiles, loaded with dirt, these to be used for blocking highway if the need ever comes. "Cattle roam the fields in large numbers, this being protection from airplanes that might attempt landings. And the business men are organized into groups, with each one spending two nights weekly in the open, assigned to points to watch for invaders."

During the business portion, Earl McEuen presided, and appointed the following committees:

The proclamation pointed out that all citizens and aliens in the required age group must register. The polling booths will remain open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. No aliens, except those who have declared their intention of becoming citizens, will be subject to the draft, however.

"I call upon all citizens of this Commonwealth," said Governor James, "to give liberally of their services, as will those who are included in the selective years and that he is a good worker and has a good character. He said Adamski's car was dented in the fender while being parked along the "Chinese Wall" in Phila., earlier in the Summer.

The young bridegroom, who said he paid William Shadle, Jr., the sum of $4.50, which was the amount of damage done to the Shadle car, denied that his car struck the Shadle car which was parked in a lawn at the home of Arthur States in Andalusia.

"I went up to his house to see the car and thought rather than have a fuss I would pay him $4.50. Shadle never even sent me a receipt which he promised to do," said the defendant. The defendant, who denied that his car left the highway and dented a fender on the Shadle car, although he paid him the $4.50, testified the radio was playing and that he didn't hear Shadle chasing him in his car.

Private John I. Swann, of the South Langhorne sub-station of the Penna. Motor Police, testified that when he arrested Adamski early August 12 he appeared to be under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

"Why didn't you arrest him for drunken driving, if you thought the defendant unfit to operate his car?" snapped Wilbur H. VanDine, who was appointed counsel for the defendant by the Court.

"Because I couldn't have proved that he was drunk at the time he drove the car," said Private Swann. "There would have been evidence only that he drank it after he got home," Private Swann said.

Adamski, who said he drank some beer at the picnic, danced, played games and swam, denied that he was drunk when the officer came to his house to arrest him.

Shadle, a bookkeeper, who testified his car was struck while he was visiting friends in Andalusia, said he followed the defendant's car for several blocks, losing the chase but managing to get the defendant's license number.

"I asked the Philadelphia Police to help me get him, but they refused to handle the case," said Shadle, who testified Adamski "snarled" at him during the chase.

Adamski denied that he knew Shadle was following him. "My car is so old, rattles so much and with the radio playing I never heard his horn blowing or Shadle yelling," said Adamski.

Charles E. Dawson, 44, of Upper Darby, represented in court Tuesday by William H. Satterthwaite, Doylestown attorney, was acquitted of a charge of driving while drunk, but directed by the jury to pay the costs. His car struck a bridge at Neshaminy Falls on August 13 when he was arrested by Private Gollub, of the Oxford Valley substation of Motor Police. The defendant was pronounced intoxicated by a Morrisville osteopathic physician.

Yvonne de Bergasa, daughter of the Countess de Bergasa, of England, will enter the upper school at St. Mary's, coming to the United States from Canada, where she attended school last year.

Hermione and Mary McPhee, aged seven and nine, arrived in New York last week on a freighter carrying 130 other refugees to safety in the United States.

Also from England comes Stephanie Hayes, who has been in America for one month.

All the way from Peru comes nine-year-old Anne Reinberg, daughter of an American scientist who has been stationed there.

Following are the faculty changes: Miss Jessalyn L. Gordy, of Seaford, Del., graduate of the University of Delaware, has been named librarian. Miss Margaret Botts, of Pensacola, Fla., graduate of Barnard College, will teach Spanish and commercial subjects.

Miss Viola R. Collins, former Palmyra teacher and graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, will teach the lower school classes. Miss Eileen Bell, of Upper Darby, Pa., Beaver College alumna, will teach physical education, replacing Miss Elizabeth Faville, who is to teach in an Arizona private school. Miss Bell comes to St. Mary's from a private school in Canada.

Miss Hilda Ruch, new academic head, is to teach biology, general science and chemistry in the newly-equipped laboratory in the school basement.

Star of 1941 Studebaker Line

Here is the new 1941 Studebaker Commander in the startling Land Cruiser model that caused so much conversation among automobile editors and automotive technicians during the pre-view season. The new Commander is larger, roomier and more powerful than its predecessor and its sleek, slip-stream lines by Raymond Loewy give it genuine distinction.
